Reengineering the Census Bureau's Annual Integrated Economic Survey

The Census Bureau will conduct a presentation on the Annual Integrated Economic Survey (AIES), a new program that will replace many annual benchmark surveys including the Annual Survey of Manufactures, the Annual Survey of Retail Trade, the Annual Survey of Wholesale Trade, the Services Annual Survey, the Annual Capital Expenditures Survey, and the Manufacturers' Unfilled Orders Survey, while creating an integrated, respondent-centric platform. The Census Bureau seeks to inform the Committee and stakeholders of its progress on the AIES through this session. The Census Bureau also seeks feedback on the AIES, specifically the impact of changes to programs at BLS and BEA as well as other stakeholders including federal and other government users, researchers, and businesses.
